THE WOODLAND

The woodlands around the stream, which all are well covered with shrubs and low trees, are composed mainly of large shrubs, such as the common hazel, the hawthorn, the blackthorn, and the dog-rose, and also of small trees, such as the birch, the alder, the hornbeam, and the beech.
The woodlands are very varied in character, some being more open than others, and some more densely wooded.
